About Char:

Ever since she could hold her first crayon and was wayward enough to color outside of the lines, Char Szabo-Perricelli has been making things. An artist/photographer with a passion for architecture, history and the environment, she has a penchant for shooting the mostly unnoticed and forgotten. Her images have been published in print magazines, online in many professional venues and as privately owned fine art prints. In several cases, her images are all that remain of some of the historically and architecturally relevant places she has documented.
